I-5 Corridor Improvements

The Golden State Freeway (I-5) is the backbone of California's freeway system, running north-south from the Mexican border to Oregon and then beyond to Canada. It is a key transportation route for the movement of people, goods and services throughout the state. Recognizing the importance of I-5's economic role, the California Department of Transportation (Caltrans) District 7, serving Los Angeles and Ventura counties, is investing more than two billion dollars in improvements to the corridor over the next five years.
